

The U.S. Patent System:
Just the

America's leading research universities recognize that provisions in the Patent Reform Act of 2007 will undermine the value of patents and hinder future innovation.

The following universities have urged Congress to support changes to the current legislation to ensure the United States retains the most effective patent system in the world:

University of California System	North Dakota State University
Cornell University	Northwestern University
University of Illinois	Ohio State University
Indiana University	Pennsylvania State University
University of Iowa	Purdue University
University of Maryland	University of Utah
Michigan State University	Vanderbilt University and Medical Center
University of Michigan	Washington University in St. Louis
University of Minnesota	Wayne State University
University of Missouri	Medical College of Wisconsin
University of New Hampshire	University of Wisconsin - Madison
University of North Carolina

Where does your state's university stand?

In its current form, the Patent Reform Act of 2007 is bad for American innovation and wrong for America.